1.1 REMARKS OF PETER J. DEY OF THE O.S.C.

CONSOLIDATION OF REMARKS OF PETER J. DEY CONCERNING DISCLOSURE UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT MADE TO SECURITIES LAWYERS IN CALGARY AND TORONTO ON JUNE 7 AND 9

...Originally, I had planned to review some of the policy initiatives that we have taken in the last five months, and to review some possible policy directions. If time permits, or during the question period, I will return to these policy issues. However, the release of the decision of the Divisional Court of the Supreme Court of Ontario last week in the Royal Trustco case has served to focus attention upon, perhaps the most important and yet at the same time, perhaps the most difficult area of securities law - disclosure of material facts and material changes, and obligations of reporting issuers and persons in a special relationship with reporting issuers, during the period leading up to the occurrence of a material change.

The Divisional Court heard an appeal by two officers of Royal Trustco, Messrs. White and Scholes, from a Commission decision made in October 1981, depriving them of their registration exemptions for 60 and 30 days respectively. The case arose out of the August 1980 bid by Campeau Corporation for Royal Trustco.

You may recall that the bid was vigorously opposed by Royal Trustco, with the defence led by White and Scholes. The reasons of the Court that are of particular interest to securities lawyers deal with one allegation that was made by the Commission staff to the effect that the respondents made certain disclosures to officers of the Toronto Dominion Bank, a substantial shareholder of Royal Trustco, at a time when the bank was considering whether to accept the bid. The information was not disclosed to other shareholders. This disclosure was made just prior to the expiry of the initial bid - the bid was later extended.

The information was to the effect that approximately 60% of the shares of Royal Trustco were owned by persons or companies who the officers knew, or had reason to believe, would not tender pursuant to the bid. The Commission concluded in a hearing under Section 124 of the Ontario Securities Act that this disclosure was contrary to Section 75(1)(b) of the Act, the tipping prohibition, which prohibits any person or company in a special relationship with a reporting issuer from informing, other than in the necessary course of business, another person or company about a fact or change which he knows is a material fact or material change, before the material fact or material change has been generally disclosed.

I learned of the court's conclusion when I was in Vancouver last week, by reading a newspaper report which said that the case shows the court can find that an intention to do something is important enough to merit disclosure to all shareholders. Although I would accept this proposition in certain circumstances, I don't think the case stands for this proposition. The newspaper report also attempted to show an inconsistency between the finding of the Divisional Court and the Commission's determination, which has been well publicized, not to prosecute Norcen and two of its officers for failure to make certain disclosures of Norcen's interest in establishing a relationship with the Hanna Mining Company.

The court in Royal Trustco found that the information disclosed fell easily within the category of material facts within the context of the legislation and in the prevailing circumstances. In the words of Mr. Justice Reid, "Having in mind the general object of Section 75, which is to prevent improper or unfair disclosure, I do not think that the term "fact" should be read super-critically. In my opinion, the information was sufficiently factual or a sufficient alteration of circumstances to be a "material change" to fall within the section. In my opinion the Commission was justified in holding that the section has been breached".

The publication of the court's reasons, the confusion generated by the newspaper article and other circumstances which we have encountered in the last couple of months, suggest its important that we spend some time reviewing the basics of our disclosure philosophy, and in particular, the policy considerations underlying the requirements for disclosure on a timely basis and for disclosure of material facts in certain other circumstances. In doing so, I should add that I am not commenting upon any particular fact situation which has been, or is being, considered by the Commission or the courts. But, rather, I am indicating one approach to these issues.

There are three basic principles underlying the regulation of disclosure in our securities laws, two of which are set out in that ancient, but still living, policy Uniform Act Policy 2-12, entitled "Timely Disclosure". The first principle is stated clearly in the policy: "It is essential that all investors be placed on an equal footing insofar as knowledge of the material facts regarding the company which has securities in the hands of the public." That principle is relatively straightforward, and is one which must continually guide advisors who are making judgments as to whether information possessed by a corporation, or persons in a special relationship with the corporation proposing to make a trade in securities, puts the corporation or the related person at an advantage over the other party to the trade.

The second principle is that our securities laws must create a framework which allows corporations to pursue transactions which may result in a material change, without requiring public disclosure of this pursuit until an appropriate point in time. The legitimate corporate interest in confidentiality should be recognized by our laws, but only if the corporation and its related persons can satisfy certain conditions.

The third principle is set out in an October 1980 notice of the Commission entitled "Premature Announcements of Take-Over Bids, Mergers, Amalgamations or Other Corporate Restructuring." This notice states a Commission policy to the effect that a reporting issuer announcing an intent to proceed with a transaction which could result in a material change "implies a present willingness and ability to carry out that intent". Concerns about premature and late disclosure emphasize the delicacy of the judgement as to the timing of an announcement of a material change. Traditionally, securities regulators worried about announcements being made too late. However, the Commission's notice emphasizes that the damage to the marketplace can be equally severe if the announcement of a material change is made prematurely, that is to say, before the change occurred but in terms which suggest it has occurred.

Having stated these three basic principles, consider the evolution of a typical corporate transaction which results in a material change. As a general matter, there are at least five stages, relevant for disclosure purposes, in the evolution of such a corporate transaction. (Needless to say, the number of stages will vary from issuer to issuer and transaction to transaction).

1. The first stage I will call the "research stage". This is a period of time during which alternatives are being researched, considered and studied by the appropriate officers of the corporation. This stage in the corporate transaction may be carried out over an extended period of time, or in a compressed period of time, depending upon the nature of the material change which may result from the research. For example, a corporation may want to make an acquisition. Its research will turn up one or more possible targets, will involve obtaining information about the targets and their shareholdings and will consider possible means for making the acquisition. A more compressed consideration of a corporate course of action would be required if the corporation had just become the target of a hostile take-over bid. In a short period of time the corporation would have to consider what alternative responses are open to it.

Stage one research, concerning a variety of transactions, is generally ongoing at any point in time in most corporations. These transactions may involve such matters as a new financing, a possible acquisition or disposition of assets, changes in technology, a change in dividend rate, expanded or contracted product base, earnings forecasts, and so on.

2. The next stage I have identified as the "planning stage". In the planning stage, a number of variables identified in stage one will have been eliminated - probably as a result of the officers responsible for researching the corporate action consulting a senior officer or the board of directors of the corporation. The senior officer or the board will, in the course of this consultation, have given some direction to the officers. For example, the identity of the target company may be confirmed and the possibility of a negotiated acquisition may be eliminated. But the senior officer or the board may want more information on whether the acquisition should be made for cash or paper; if paper, in what form it should be issued; if cash, at what cost to the corporation; whether the acquisition should be made by a circular bid or a stock exchange bid, and so on. If the company is considering its response to a take-over bid, the senior officer or board may have advised the officer carrying out the research and planning that the corporation is considering resisting the take-over bid, but before the corporation makes a final decision to this effect, the officer or board would like further information as to the identity of possible white knights and the terms upon which a white knight might enter the contest, and information on other possible defences.

The work in the planning stage is not usually done in a relaxed manner, but progresses with greater intensity than the work at stage one. Corporate sensitivity to disclosure obligations and to trading in securities should heighten through stage two. At the conclusion of stage two, the corporate officers will have a pretty good sense of whether the corporate action that is being planned will or will not be carried through and result in a material change in the affairs of the corporation.

Late in the planning stage the issuer should consider disclosing the proposed material change on a confidential basis to the Chairman, Director or Deputy Director, Enforcement of the Commission. Disclosure on this basis will allow the Commission to monitor trading in the securities in question at a sensitive time in the evolution of the material change. This disclosure will also provide the issuer with an opportunity to determine whether senior staff at the Commission has concerns about the transaction which might attract or require the use of Commission discretion. The staff may at this time provide the issuer with a preliminary view of the position it might take on an application to the Commission.

3. The third stage is the "decision stage". Senior management will have reduced the variables to the point where implementation of the change by the corporation appears likely and confirmation of the proposed course of action by the board of directors is probable. It is also possible that, senior management having been previously authorized, may implement the change without board approval, although this method of proceeding within a corporation is becoming more rare. If senior management does require board approval, then good corporate practice will require senior management to put the matter before the board as soon as possible. By definition, information concerning the material change will be sensitive, and the corporation will reduce the possibilities for misuse of the information the sooner it is put to the board and the board's decision disclosed.
4. The fourth stage is the "disclosure stage". In the words of Uniform Act Policy 2-12, "Disclosure should be made of a proposal or proposed change when a decision accepting or recommending acceptance of such proposal or proposed change has been made; in other cases of material change, when such change has occurred or when such change has been agreed upon by the relevant parties, notwithstanding that all the details may not have been documented".

The disclosure obligations are clear. The reporting issuer is obligated forthwith after the material change occurs, to issue and file a press release authorized by a senior officer disclosing the nature and substance of the change. Within ten days of the date upon which the change occurs, a statutory report of the change must be filed with the Commission.

The statute does recognize that, notwithstanding that a material change has occurred, the corporation may want to delay disclosure in two circumstances. First, the corporation may decide that disclosure at the time of the change would be unduly detrimental to the interests of the corporation. In this case, management must have decided that disclosure would occasion harm to the company which might outweigh any possible damage to shareholders by withholding information. For example, the corporation may have decided to make a take-over bid for a particular company, but not to announce the take-over bid until its senior management has had an opportunity to discuss the bid with management of the target company, in the hope of having the bid proceed on a friendly basis.

The other exception to simultaneous disclosure arises if the material change consists of a decision to implement the change by senior management, who believe that confirmation of the decision by the board is probable. For obvious reasons senior management will not want to disclose the change. Otherwise the board of directors, whose approval is necessary, will read about the proposal in the newspaper. In addition they will realize that they are being taken for granted because the change is only disclosed at that time because it is presumed by senior management that board approval is probable.

This latter exception to simultaneous disclosure, is only available if the senior management of the issuer has no reason to believe that persons with knowledge of the material change have made use of the knowledge in purchasing or selling securities of the issuer.

The Commission's experience is that confidential disclosure under Section 74(3) is not that common, and that most reporting issuers organize their affairs so that they are in a position to make disclosure at the same time as the material change occurs.

5. The fifth stage is the "dissemination stage". The Commission's decision in the National Sea Products case back in 1976 contains a useful discussion of the principles to be followed by reporting issuers to ensure that material information has been disseminated. The dissemination period will vary from issuer to issuer, depending upon its size and its following in the marketplace. The general practice of the TSE is that if disclosure of a material change is carried on the wire services and covered in the morning newspaper, trading in the issuer's securities will not be halted. If the material change is carried on the wire service before the market opening or during the trading day, trading in the issuer's securities is halted for approximately two hours. Practice will, of course, vary and the exact length of time needed to assess the impact of the market.

What obligations then, are imposed upon the reporting issuer and persons in a special relationship with a reporting issuer during these stages in the evolution of a corporate transaction? We have all experienced the difficulty in identifying the point in time for disclosure of a material change. Perhaps as difficult, is advising the reporting issuer and its officers of permissible activities throughout the course of the development of the transaction. Typical questions that arise are:

1. With whom can I discuss this proposal?
2. Can I buy or sell securities of the corporation with which I have a special relationship at some point in time during the work on the transaction?
3. Does the corporation have to disclose its consideration of a possible plan of action in a disclosure document, such as a prospectus or take-over bid circular, which the corporation proposes to publish independently of this possible plan of action?

The principles that I would apply in answering some of these questions, both as a counsel advising a client, and as a securities regulator, are the following -

Advising a corporate officer on whether he can communicate information to a third party is perhaps the easiest advice to give, because generally it doesn't cost the officer anything not to communicate the information. The exception arises when the officer wishes to communicate information "in the necessary course of business", the wording used in Section 75(1)(b) of the Ontario Act. Again, advice on this issue is not normally a problem, although one caution is raised by the Divisional Court's ruling in the Royal Trustco Case. In that case it was argued that the communication was being made in the necessary course of business. This argument was weakened considerably because the recipient of the information was also a shareholder - a shareholder contemplating an investment decision.

I believe that it will be the very rare case where information communicated to a party, which is also a shareholder contemplating an investment decision, will be regarded as information communicated in the necessary course of business. In these circumstances, the principle of equality of information will usually outweigh the necessity for the corporation to communicate information for business purposes.

As a general matter, most responsible corporate officers will not, at any time, provide information to third parties concerning a corporation's plans regardless of the stage of the plans. However, if concerns arise for whatever reason and reference must be had to the hard law, it is clear that tipping material facts or material changes by persons in a special relationship to the issuer is prohibited.

As noted earlier, stage one research of various courses of action is generally ongoing in most corporations. The Commission would generally not consider information concerning activities being researched to constitute material facts and would not consider the undertaking of research a material change. This is not to say, however, that the Commission might not consider loose talk by a corporate officer or other insider as action requiring sanction by the Commission. An officer who says that his company is considering acquiring control of a substantial block of Company "x" may not be communicating a material fact or material change because of the tentative nature of his company's consideration of the acquisition, but the communication itself may affect the market and we, as regulators, could consider taking action under Section 124 to discourage this conduct - conduct which could be considered as manipulative. Such conduct would raise the same concerns as premature disclosure by the issuer. Such talk might also constitute the basis for unexplained activity in an issuer's shares. In such event the issuer may be required by securities regulators to make a clarifying statement to eliminate the consequences of premature disclosure. Trading in securities of the issuer by special relationship persons during stage one will generally not be a concern to the regulator.

It is possible for an issuer to disclose information about a negotiation or other transaction before the negotiation or transaction has evolved to the point in time where it constitutes a material change. Although the Commission does not require this form of disclosure, the Commission generally recognizes the ability of the street to assess the significance for the market of carefully couched disclosure at any time. If such disclosure is made, it must not be made selectively but generally, and the terms of the disclosure must be very carefully drafted so that the disclosure does not constitute premature disclosure - or, put another way, the disclosure must not convey the impression that the transaction under negotiation has been concluded before it has in fact been negotiated fully or received the requisite approvals to constitute a material change. The Commission is vigilant to ensure that premature or sloppy disclosure is not made with the objective of manipulating the market.

As the consideration of a corporate course of action enters into stage two, greater care must be taken by corporate officers before informing unrelated parties of the action, and before any trading in securities is undertaken.

Events at stage one are generally too tentative to constitute material information. Into stage two, the planning stage, events start to crystallize, but the material change generally will not have occurred. For example, if the vice-president of corporate planning of a corporation is meeting with the corporation's bankers to discuss the costs of financing an acquisition, this information concerning the possible acquisition would generally be too soft and would not constitute a material fact. It would be information which would only be meaningful to speculators. We, of course, do not develop our disclosure policies to generate information for speculators.

In the period immediately before the material change, legal advisors must ask the responsible corporate officer, how hard is the information - would the corporate officer, as the hypothetical reasonable investor, want this information before investing - or would he consider the transaction in respect of which the information is relevant, to be too far from implementation so that information concerning the transaction would be misleading?

However, at some point in time, usually late in the planning stage, the responsible officers will see their planning efforts "come together" and will have a strong feeling that the proposed change will either be approved or rejected. At this point in time warning bells should ring. There should be no trading by insiders or the corporation itself, and certainly no discussion of the proposed change with outsiders. In addition, the corporation should try to avoid putting itself in a position, although the material change may not have technically occurred, where it has to make disclosure of all material facts, such as by filing a prospectus. The filing of the prospectus should be deferred until the change has been announced. If the filing cannot be deferred, the prudent course late in stage 2 will be to disclose precisely the status of the issuer's consideration of the transaction which is close to being a material change.

Alternatively, the planning may have come together differently, with the result that the course of action is not practical, and therefore, the contemplated change will not occur. The warning bells do not have to sound in this instance, and no special efforts need be made by the corporation to limit trading or to control disclosure which is otherwise being made.

Corporate obligations, once the material change occurs, are clear. Until the change has been disseminated, the corporation and persons in a special relationship with the corporation, should not trade in the corporation's securities, and should rely upon the newswires, etc. for dissemination of the information to create the equality of information in the marketplace.

In summary, the three stages, the research, planning and decision stages have a particular meaning for the securities regulator. As a general matter during the research stage the regulator will not be concerned if securities are traded by special relationship persons. The regulator will not require that disclosure of plans being researched be made by the issuer. Such disclosure, although not contrary to the tipping prohibition because a material fact or material change will generally not have occurred at that point in time, unless couched very carefully, may be considered detrimental to the capital markets and could constitute the basis for action under Section 124.

This regulatory approach continues into the planning stage until the work of the responsible officers suggest to them that there is a reasonable prospect that the course of action will be implemented. At this point in time the material change may still not have technically occurred, because necessary approvals or agreements have not been obtained. It is possible that information that the responsible officer believes the change will occur is a material fact - although the change has not occurred. In any event, officers with knowledge of the course of action should refrain from trading securities and should of course continue to refrain from tipping. The issuer should also defer plans to issue other disclosure documents requiring disclosure of material facts and material changes until the formal decision is made to implement the change, unless of course other disclosure documents must be issued, in which event careful disclosure of the stage of the transaction must be made.

Once the decision is made to implement the action and disclosure is made and disseminated, the restrictions on informing and trading disappears.

Perhaps before concluding the discussion I should focus for a minute on the distinction between material fact and material change -- a distinction we are all aware of. The test of materiality is the same for both terms -- a change that would reasonably be expected to have a significant effect on the market price or value of any of the securities of the issuer; or a fact that significantly affects or would reasonably be expected to have a significant effect on the market price or value of such securities.

Why the distinction?

The theory behind having the two concepts of material fact and material change is that when an issuer becomes a reporting issuer, all material facts concerning the issuer should be on the public record. Thereafter, new and material information concerning the issuer can only arise as a result of a change in the affairs of the issuer. Therefore, the timely disclosure obligation in Section 74 applies only to material changes. The term "material fact" is necessary when an issuer is publishing a disclosure document, such as a prospectus or a take-over bid circular, where all material information concerning the issuer at a point in time is published in one document which is convenient to the investor. The term "material change" is limited to a change in the business, operations or capital of the issuer. This is an attempt to relieve reporting issuers of the obligation to continually interpret external political, economic and social developments as they affect the affairs of the issuer, unless the external change will result in a change in the business, operations or capital of the issuer, in which case, timely disclosure of the change must be made.

This theory for the distinction is supported by the requirement that timely disclosure be made only of material changes and not of material facts--because the material facts should all be in the public realm. If all material facts should be in the public realm, I ask myself: Why is there a prohibition against tipping material facts? The answer must be that material information about an issuer can arise without there being a change in the business operations or capital of the issuer. And then I ask myself, why shouldn't this new information have to be disclosed under Section 74? And my answer is that maybe it should and reference should be made to Bill 176. In the meantime, if you are advising an issuer about disclosure of information which is not public, and, even though you think you can conclude that the information does not concern a change in the business operations or capital of the issuer, but you think the information could have a significant effect on the market price or value of any of the securities of the issuer, the issuer and its special relationship persons are sitting on a bit of a time bomb until the information is generally disclosed. The advice is clear.

Having said that I should take a look at Bill 176, I think this look should include Section 75a which prohibits tipping of the intention to make a take-over bid. There are too many disclosure tests developing - material fact, material change and now intention to make a take-over bid. This last test - the test of intention, should be redrafted and tied into our definition of material change.

This leads me to brief discussion of revisions to the statute. As you know, Bill 176 was originally scheduled to be given a third reading this spring. We have decided to request our Minister to defer proceeding with the Bill until we have had an opportunity to make changes that are more than housekeeping changes and reflect some important developments in the last several months. These include:

1. We may be proposing for the Minister's consideration, amendments to the Section 91(1) follow-up obligation, based upon the results of the recommendations to be made shortly by the Committee of three practitioners, and the results of the Joint Industry Committee inquiring into the follow-up provision. It would appear that the thrust of these recommendations will be to remove the private agreement exemption in cases where a premium is proposed to be paid to acquire control. This approach would, in effect, eliminate the two-stage acquisition which has been the source of some major problems with the provision, because of developments intervening between the time of the private agreement and the follow-up.
2. The prompt offering prospectus system is finding a high degree of acceptance. To date, Ontario has received 33 AIFs and cleared 28; has received 11 short form preliminaries and has issued 8 receipts for short form prospectuses. As you know, the system has been implemented by orders of the most of the Securities Commissions which deal only with the form and content of the prospectus, and which leave the balance of the Act applicable to the prospectus, including the liability provision. I think all regulators would feel more comfortable if the POP system was reflected in the statute itself so that the short form prospectus specifically attracted the liability provisions which are applicable to conventional prospectuses.
3. We have been doing some tampering with the closed system to deal with technical issues. For example, we will be issuing a blanket order to eliminate the tacking of hold periods so that if a convertible security is subject to, for example, a twelve month hold period, a new twelve month hold period does not apply when the conversion right is exercised. Another issue relates to the consistency between hold periods for warrants and the underlying securities. It is quite possible that a warrant may be subject to an eighteen month hold period, but that the warrant may be exercised to purchase a common share which is subject to a six month hold period. We believe this is inconsistent, and that the hold period of the underlying securities should govern both the warrant and the underlying security.
4. The role of financial institutions in the securities business is a very lively issue at the present time. As you probably are aware, the Commission is convening an open meeting during the week of June 20 at which all parties interested in this issue have been invited to express their views. Ultimately the Commission will make some determination as to its perception of the public interest in financial institutions expanding their role in the securities industry. The question of institutional ownership and diversification we canvassed by the Commission last summer and resulted in a report being published in December. This report and the results of our meeting during the week of June 20, could result in some recommendations for amendments to the statute.
5. Another issue might be considered for inclusion in the act is the creation of statutory liability, for continuous disclosure documents, such as timely disclosure releases, quarterly and annual reports and information circulars. The extension of statutory liability to the secondary market is consistent with the extension of the availability of short form prospectuses. Our thinking in this area is still at the research stage, stage 1, and may not be ready when the Bill is reintroduced.

Before I conclude, I want to list quickly some areas of policy development upon which you may want to ask questions.

1. The prompt offering prospectus system - the policy has been amended to permit secondary offerings of securities of qualified issuers to be made under this system, and the requirement for the written consent of an expert who is named as having prepared or certified any part of a document incorporated by reference in a short form prospectus, has been reinstated.
2. We attempted to address the concerns about the extraterritorial application of the Ontario follow-up offer provision in one case, by stating that the obligation only applies if the private agreement vendor has an Ontario address, subject to the caveat that is applicable to all transactions which affect the capital markets in Ontario, and that is that the Commission would intervene if the terms of the private agreement, or the circumstances of the execution of the agreement, could be regarded as abusive to minority shareholders, or as having a negative impact on the capital markets.
3. We will shortly publish a revised policy concerning publication of financial forecasts.
4. We have repealed OSC Policy 1.5 concerning distributions of securities outside Ontario and substituted an interpretation note. In addition we will be implementing a monitoring system which will allow us to determine whether distributions by Ontario based issuers outside Ontario are being made to backdoor into Ontario without complying with Ontario requirements.
5. The TSE junior market is now in operation, and allows a first time natural resource or industrial issuer to satisfy the TSE listing and financial requirements by an offering on the floor of the exchange. This is a significant development in the junior end of the market in Ontario.

NOTICES

1.1 T.S.E. PROPOSED BY-LAW RELATING TO PRINCIPAL TRADING

NOTICE

THE TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

PROPOSED BY-LAW RELATING TO PRINCIPAL TRADING

The following is the text of a letter from The Toronto Stock Exchange outlining a proposal to amend its General By-law as it relates to customer principal trading.

July 13, 1983

Mr. Peter J. Dey, Q.C.
Chairman
Ontario Securities Commission
20 Queen Street West
Suite 1800, Box 55
Toronto, Ontario

Dear Mr. Dey:

Re: Customer-Principal Trading

Historically, The Toronto Stock Exchange has taken the position that its members may not trade as principals with their own clients through its facilities. This position was taken as a result of concern about the inherent conflict of interest created by such trading and the legal consequences. However, the prohibition on customer-principal trading often results in disservice to clients and reduced liquidity in the market. As a result, the Exchange introduced a number of exceptions over the years to deal with the specific problem areas that arose during the growth and diversification of the TSE market. As a result of these exceptions and the many other instances in which trading takes place on a principal basis, members and their customers have, over the years, gained considerable experience in dealing on a customer-principal basis.

While this evolution was taking place, the Exchange was continually improving its trading and market surveillance systems. Two decades ago there was no market surveillance section and very little in the way of trading information. Today, the Exchange's Market Surveillance section has immediate access to a complete audit trail which enables it to effectively oversee the market.

In spite of exceptions introduced over the last two decades, the restrictions on customer-principal trading still have an adverse effect on market efficiency, liquidity and the ability of members to service clients. In addition, the restrictions prejudice the competitive position of the Exchange vis-a-vis other markets, particularly the American stock exchanges. As a result, the Exchange has for some time had under consideration a revision of its rules relating to customer-principal trading with a view to adopting a coherent and efficient regulatory pattern that is more in keeping with the existing environment.

The move to the new trading floor with its enhanced trading and market surveillance systems, the abolition of fixed minimum commission rates, and the increasingly competitive environment makes this a particularly propitious time for such a change. Moreover, the change is essential so that the TSE market can develop properly and meet the needs of Members, listed companies and the public.

Enclosed with this letter are copies of a "Submission to the Ontario Securities Commission Concerning a Proposed By-law Relating to Principal Trading". The proposed by-law (the "By-law") has been approved in principle by the Exchange. In the Submission, the Exchange requests the Commission to permit it to expeditiously implement the By-law.

In substance, the By-law would permit a member to effect a principal trade with a client where the price the member is offering to the client is better than the price available from public investors and equal to or better than the price available from professionals.

Investors are concerned with obtaining the "best fill" available on a timely basis. They are not overly concerned about whether the transaction was effected on an agency or principal basis. However, as regulators, the Exchange and the Commission must be assured that the new flexibility and increased reliance on member responsibility will benefit both particular investors and the market as a whole. Accordingly, the By-law and accompanying Policy Statement contain a number of provisions which are designed to ensure that:

- (i) clients obtain the best price or "best fill";
- (ii) clients are aware that they are dealing with a member on a principal basis;
- (iii) there is satisfactory surveillance of principal trading; and
- (iv) there is appropriate displacement so that public orders in the market are recognized and the integrity of the agency auction market is preserved.

The Exchange believes the proposed By-law is not only in the best interests of investors and the market, but necessary for the market's long-term growth. The By-law and Policy Statement contain requirements that ensure adequate protection of both investors and the market. Moreover, the pricing system of the market and the integrity of members will ensure that the new rules do not result in abuse of public investors.

We appreciate your providing us with this early opportunity to review the proposal and to respond to any questions you may have. The By-law is a significant step in the development of the market, and timing of its implementation is important. We look forward to your comments.

Yours very truly,

H.W. McKay

The Ontario Securities Commission proposes to give expeditious consideration to the Submission of the Exchange. The Commission's present view following on a preliminary review of the Submission, is that it is unnecessary to convene a formal hearing on this matter. However, the Submission does raise important issues relating to trading in the secondary market. Prior to making a decision the Commission would welcome the benefit of public comment on any of the issues raised by the Submission.

The Submission of the Exchange including schedules is available for inspection at the offices of the Commission and the Exchange. Copies of the proposed by-law on principal trading including a memorandum on the basic elements of the proposed by-law and an accompanying policy statement can be obtained by contacting the Exchange at 947-4571.

Interested parties are invited to make written submissions. Submissions should be received by September 16, 1983 and should be addressed to the Commission and the Exchange as follows:

Secretary to the Commission
Ontario Securities Commission
Suite 1800
Box 55
20 Queen Street West
Toronto, Ontario
M5H 3S8

Mr. Ermanno Pascutto
Director
Market Policy Division
The Toronto Stock Exchange
The Exchange Tower
2 First Canadian Place
Toronto, Ontario
M5X 1J2

Those making submissions are requested to provide 10 copies to the Commission and 4 copies to the Exchange.

NOTICES/PRESS RELEASES

1.1 DISCOUNT BROKERAGE AND THE ROLE OF FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

NOTICE

DISCOUNT BROKERAGE AND THE ROLE OF FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

TAKE NOTICE that the Ontario Securities Commission will reconvene its public meeting re: the above matter on Tuesday, September 6, 1983, at 9:30 a.m., in the Harry S. Bray Hearing Room, 18th Floor, 20 Queen Street West, Toronto, Ontario, M5H 3S8.

1.2 NOVA SCOTIA SAVINGS &amp; LOAN COMPANY

1.2.1 HALIFAX DEVELOPMENTS HOLDINGS LIMITED - S. 123

July 28, 1983

The Ontario Securities Commission today issued a Cease Trade Order pursuant to section 123(2) of the Securities Act prohibiting shareholders of Nova Scotia Savings & Loan ("NSSL") Company resident in Ontario from tendering their shares in response to the offer of Halifax Developments Holdings Limited ("HDHL"), dated July 22, 1983, to purchase all of the outstanding and issued shares of NSSL at a price of $23.00 per share.

This order was made because of the concern of the Commission that the Offer may not provide complete particulars of the purchase by HDHL of NSSL shares from NSSL officers and directors.

THE Commission is also concerned that the Offer may not comply with certain provisions in the Act and Commission policy statements governing the conduct of take-overs.

A hearing will be held by the Commission within 15 days.

1.3 NOVA SCOTIA SAVINGS &amp; LOAN COMPANY

1.3.1 EXCO CORPORATION LIMITED - S. 99

August 3, 1983

The Ontario Securities Commission announced that it will convene a public hearing on short notice at 7:00 p.m. this evening to consider an application under section 99(e) of the Securities Act on behalf of Exco Corporation Limited ("Exco") in which Exco is seeking an order under section 99(e) of the Act exempting it from certain provisions of Part XIX of the Act relating to take-over bids.

The effect of the order sought would permit Exco to proceed with a take-over bid in Ontario to purchase all of the common shares of Nova Scotia Savings & Loan Company ("NSSL") at a price of $25.00 per share, other than the 494,000 common shares of NSSL issued by NSSL on July 19 and 20, 1983.

1.4 NOVA SCOTIA SAVINGS &amp; LOAN COMPANY

1.4.1 EXCO CORPORATION LIMITED - DECISION

August 4, 1983

The Ontario Securities Commission announced that it has denied an application by Exco Corporation Limited ("Exco") for an order that its proposed take-over bid for common shares of Nova Scotia Savings & Loan Company ("NSSL") not be required to be made to holders of NSSL common shares whose last address on the records of NSSL is in Ontario and who acquired any of the 494,000 common shares of NSSL referred to in the press release of NSSL issued on July 21, 1983. These holders include Extendicare Ltd., Taronga Holdings Limited and Noranda Mines Retirement Annuity Plan. The Commission did, however, decide that it would permit Exco to make a take-over bid subject to a condition that Exco would not be required to take up and pay for any of the 494,000 shares tendered in response to an Exco take-over bid in the event of a further order of the Ontario Securities Commission relieving Exco of such obligations upon such terms and conditions as the Commission may then direct.

The effect of the Commission's order is to allow Exco to proceed with a take-over bid in Ontario, if it so chooses, without, at this time, obligating Exco to take up and pay for any of the 494,000 NSSL shares that might be tendered. Determination of whatever obligation Exco may have to holders of the 494,000 shares will, effectively, be deferred until such time as any of such shares are, in fact, tendered to the proposed Exco bid. Based upon the evidence presented to the Commission the inference to be drawn is that the holders of such shares do not intend to tender the shares in response to any tender offer.

The Commission stated that to make a ruling at this time to exclude any NSSL shares from participating in any take-over bid made for NSSL shares would be to judge the issue now before the courts in Nova Scotia and to make a judgement when the facts have not, and may not, materialize.

The Commission has directed its staff to settle with Exco the terms of any condition concerning Exco's obligation to take up and pay for the 494,000 NSSL shares, if tendered.

The Commission also stated that in making its decision its objective is to avoid prejudicing the rights of the parties and to preserve such rights in the event that Exco proceeds with the bid.

1.5 NOVA SCOTIA SAVINGS & LOAN COMPANY

1.5.1 HALIFAX DEVELOPMENTS HOLDINGS LIMITED - S. 123

August 5, 1983

The Ontario Securities Commission announced today that a hearing will be held at its offices at 2:00 p.m. on Monday, August 8, 1983, to consider whether to continue the temporary cease trading order issued by the Commission under section 123 of the Securities Act on July 28, 1983 in relation to trading under the take-over bid of Halifax Developments Holdings Limited for the shares of Nova Scotia Savings & Loan Company.

1.6 NOVA SCOTIA SAVINGS &amp; LOAN COMPANY

1.6.1 HALIFAX DEVELOPMENTS HOLDINGS LIMITED

August 9, 1983

The Ontario Securities Commission ("Commission") announced that it is continuing the cease trading order it issued July 28, 1983 in relation to trading under the takeover bid of Halifax Developments Holdings Limited ("HDHL") for the shares of Nova Scotia Savings & Loan Company ("NSSL"). The order is to remain in effect until the sending to shareholders of NSSL of a new Circular or of a Notice of Variation to the HDHL Take-over bid Circular dated July 22, 1983. The new Circular or Notice of Variation required by the Commission's decision would have to disclose as a significant change from the circumstances prevailing as the date of the Circular of July 22, the intention of HDHL that any shareholder of NSSL tendering his shares to HDHL whose shares are subsequently sold by HDHL, after the termination of its offer, into a competing take-over bid will be paid any excess received by HDHL over the amount paid to the shareholder under the HDHL offer. This advantageous arrangement was, at the time of the Circular of July 22, only enjoyed by directors and officers of NSSL, a fact not disclosed in the Circular.

The Commission stated that, while the extension to all shareholders of what had been a collateral agreement only available to directors and officers of NSSL has been the subject of a press release issued by HDHL and picked up by at least one financial wire service, an offeree shareholder should not have to rely on the accident of his exposure to press release, wire service tapes and newspaper reports to become aware of essential information relating to a take-over bid. The Securities Act, the Commission said, prescribes specific channels of direct communication to convey such information to the offeree shareholders.

The Commission will also expect any new Circular or Notice of Variation to enlarge on the nature of the terms set by HDHL as preconditions to making its bid and the manner in which they were satisfied by NSSL. The opportunity to make this disclosure should also be used to make clear that of the 201,000 shares issued to directors and officers of NSSL on July 19 and 20, 146,000 shares were issued as the result of options granted and exercised on July 20, 1983, on which day a meeting of the Board of Directors of NSSL acceded to the preconditions to an HDHL bid.

Reasons will be issued in due course. At that time, the Commission anticipates expressing its views as to the propriety, in terms of the integrity of the securities markets, of private placements and private placements in the guise of ostensible directors' options as defensive tactics in contested take-over bids and as to its possible reaction in the future to the employment of such tactics.

AND CARBURY OIL & GAS LIMITED

RULING
(Section 73)

UPON the application of Canzac Resources Ltd. ("Canzac") to the Ontario Securities Commission (the "Commission") pursuant to section 73 of the Securities Act, R.S.O. 1980, c. 466 (the "Act") in respect of certain first trades in shares of Carbury Oil & Gas Limited ("Carbury") to be acquired by former shareholders of Canzac pursuant to a plan of reorganization involving Canzac and Carbury;

AND UPON reading the application and the recommendation of Commission staff;

AND UPON it appearing to the Commission that:

- I Canzac is a company incorporated under the laws of the Province of Alberta and is a private company within the meaning of the Act;
- II Canzac has issued capital consisting of 1,957,002 common shares, held by 47 shareholders, 26 of whom, holding approximately 49%, are resident in Ontario;
- III Carbury is a company incorporated and governed under the laws of the Republic of Ireland and has 24 shareholders, none of whom resides in Canada;
- IV Pursuant to a bona fide reorganization within the meaning of paragraphs 34(1)12(ii) and 71(1)(f)(ii) of the Act (the "Reorganization"), it is proposed that through a series of transactions all forming part of the Reorganization, the following will occur, the transactions in paragraphs (a) and (b) having occurred as of the date of this ruling:
  - (a) Canzac will be continued under the provisions of the Business Corporations Act (Alberta) (the "ABCA"); and subsequently amalgamated under the provisions of the ABCA with a shelf company;
  - (b) The amalgamated company ("Amalco") will continue under the name of Canzac Resources Ltd., as a "private company" within the meaning of the Act;
  - (c) Amalco will sell all of its assets to Carbury in consideration of cash and treasury shares of Carbury;
  - (d) Upon completion of the Reorganization:

- (i) all former shareholders of Canzac will have their respective shares of Amalco redeemed and will have received shares of Carbury, in each case, at the same exchange ratio; and
  - (ii) the former shareholders of Canzac will hold, in the aggregate, approximately 752,693 or 52.25% of the issued and outstanding shares of Carbury in substantially the same relative proportions in which they held their respective shares in Canzac; and
- (e) Following completion of the Reorganization, Carbury will make application to The Stock Exchange (London) for entry pursuant to Rule 163(3) of that Exchange;
- V AND WHEREAS the shareholders of Canzac were sent an information circular dated as of May 9, 1983 setting out the details of the proposed Reorganization (the "Information Circular"), in respect of a meeting of the shareholders held May 30, 1983, which was called to consider and approve certain corporate steps in the Reorganization, and such shareholders have approved such corporate steps as required by applicable corporate law;
- VI AND WHEREAS Cartwright, Comber & Associates Ltd. have given their opinion that the exchange ratio of one common share of Carbury for every 2.6 shares of Amalco is fair and reasonable to the shareholders of Canzac;
- VII AND WHEREAS the Alberta Securities Commission issued an order as of May 5, 1983, varied as of July 21, 1983, in respect of the first trades in the shares of Carbury acquired by former Canzac shareholders pursuant to the Reorganization; and
- VIII Neither the Applicant nor Carbury is a reporting issuer within the meaning of the Act;

AND UPON being satisfied that to so rule would not be prejudicial to the public interest;

NOW THEREFORE IT IS RULED that notwithstanding subsection (5) of section 71 of the Act, any first trade of any of the Carbury shares by an Ontario resident former shareholders of the Applicant who acquired such Carbury shares pursuant to the Reorganization is not subject to section 24 or 52 of the Act provided that:

2. Each first trade in such Carbury shares is made either:
  - (a) in England or Ireland pursuant to Rule 163(3) of The Stock Exchange (London) or on the Unlisted Securities Market of that Exchange or otherwise in accordance with the rules and regulations thereof and in accordance with the applicable laws of the jurisdiction in question and is not knowingly made to an Ontario resident; or

- (b) pursuant to and in accordance with any otherwise available exemption from the prospectus requirements of the Act under the Act or the Regulation thereto; and
- 3. Each shareholder of Canzac resident in Ontario who will receive shares of Carbury pursuant to the reorganization of Canzac shall be provided with a copy of this Ruling together with an explanation of the restrictions on their first trades in such Carbury shares.
